Introduction

Corporate governance is a set of systems, policies and procedures which define the way in which a company is governed. It establishes the objectives of a company ensuring that the administration and management of a company is undertaken in a manner which is consistent with the interests of the company's shareholders. Additionally, it establishes a system for monitoring and evaluating the achievement of those objectives.

The ASX Recommendations define corporate governance as "the framework of rules, relationships, systems and processes within and by which authority is exercised and controlled in corporations".

Corporate governance policies will vary from company to company as there is no single system of corporate governance that is applicable to all companies. A company must establish systems, processes and policies that help it achieve its objectives in light of the nature and size of that company.

As a result, the Company has adopted a number of policies to ensure that it has high-quality and transparent systems of corporate governance in place. These policies are incorporated in this Charter and are prepared in line with the ASX Recommendations which the Board recognises as best practice guidelines.

This Charter incorporates the following:

- (a) Section 1 - Board Policy
- (b) Section 2 - Continuous Disclosure Policy
- (c) Section 3 - Code of Conduct Policy
- (d) Section 4 - Security Trading Policy
- (e) Section 5 - Insider Trading Policy
- (f) Section 6 - Diversity Policy
- (g) Section 7 - Privacy Policy
- (h) Section 8 – Audit & Risk Committee Policy
- (i) Section 9 - Remuneration and Nominations Committee Policy
- (j) Section 10 - Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy

As part of the Company's management of investor relations, the KMP may conduct briefings with analysts or investors from time to time. Disciplinary action may include dismissal.

In exceptional circumstances, and where it is the only reasonable course of action available to a Restricted Person, clearance may be given for the Restricted Person to sell (but not to purchase) shares in the Company when that person would otherwise be prohibited from doing so. In this section, “exceptional circumstances” means severe financial hardship, a court order (or court enforceable undertaking), or some other overriding legal or regulatory requirement, to transfer or sell shares in the Company or other circumstances that may be deemed exceptional by the Chairperson. For example, a Restricted Person may be in severe financial hardship if he or she has a pressing financial commitment that cannot otherwise be satisfied other than by disposing of the shares in the Company.

The Chairperson may not give clearance under this exception if there is a matter about which there is inside information in relation to shares in the Company (whether or not the Restricted Person knows about the matter) when the Restricted Person requests clearance or proposes to deal in shares in the Company.

The Chairperson or the other Directors (where the Chairperson is involved) will decide if circumstances are exceptional.

Any clearance given by the Chairperson (or the other Directors (where the Chairperson is involved)) in accordance with this section must be in writing (which may be in the form of an email). The Chairperson (or the other Directors (where the Chairperson is involved)) must determine, and specify in the written clearance, the maximum duration of the clearance.

- (a) Restricted Persons entering into hedging arrangements; or
- (b) Restricted Persons including his or her securities in the Company in margin loan portfolio or otherwise deal in securities of the Company pursuant to a margin lending arrangement.

5. Insider Trading Policy

5.1. Policy

The Board has established the Insider Trading Policy to apply to trading in the Company's securities on the ASX.

The Insider Trading Policy applies to all persons, including Directors and the KMP. A person must not deal in the Company's securities while in possession of price sensitive information.

In addition, the Insider Trading Policy sets out additional restrictions which apply to Directors and the KMP.

The law imposes a number of significant restrictions on Directors and the KMP when they deal in the Company's securities. As fiduciaries, these persons must not utilise their position for their own gain or for the gain of any person other than the Company.

The Corporations Act imposes severe penalties (both criminal and civil) on persons who conduct insider trading activities. Any perception of improper conduct by Directors and the KMP also has the potential to substantially damage the Company's reputation.

The Company has established the Insider Trading Policy in an effort to prevent the incidence of insider trading in the Company's securities. The Insider Trading Policy provides a general summary of the law in Australia in relation to insider trading, and as such operates in addition to the legal requirements. It is the personal responsibility of each Director and the KMP to comply with the Insider Trading Policy.

5.2. Overview of the insider trading provisions in the Corporations Act

It is illegal for anybody to deal in any securities of a body corporate (including the Company), when in possession of information that the person knows, or ought reasonably to know:

- (a) is not generally available (including information that the Company has not disclosed to the market in accordance with the Continuous Disclosure Policy); and
- (b) might have material effect on the price or value of those shares if it was generally available (Inside Information).

This prohibition extends to procuring another person to deal and, in the case of securities of listed corporations, extends to communicating the Inside Information to another person, if the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the other person would, or would be likely to, deal in the securities in question or procure another person to do so. To communicate Inside Information to another person is also an offence which carries both civil and criminal penalties.

A Director or a KMP in possession of Inside Information about the Company has a duty to keep that information confidential and must not in any way disclose or communicate that information to any person.

5.3. Dealing with security analysts, institutional investors and journalists

A Director or a KMP may be exposed to others outside the Company such as security analysts, institutional investors and journalists. It is important that all Directors and the KMP be aware that selective disclosure of non-public information may result in a breach of the insider trading rules.

It is important to emphasise that it is the mere fact of conveyance of the material non-public information that gives rise to liability, not the manner in which it is conveyed.

It is possible to convey information in breach of the Insider Trading Policy and the Corporations Act by expressing subjective attitudes about the Company's performance or by calling attention to selective information not available as an aggregate to the general public. It is essential to avoid the indirect conveyance of information by any means whatsoever.

If during the course of a discussion with any analyst, journalist or other outsider, material non-public information concerning the Company is disclosed, inadvertently or otherwise, the recipient of the information should be informed of its non-public nature and cautioned against its use unless and until the Company has made full public disclosure of the information. The Company Secretary should be notified of the situation immediately so that a decision can be made regarding disclosure of the information.

No public comments should be made regarding any previously undisclosed operating results or other developments unless authorised by the Company.

9.6. Power and authority

The Remuneration and Nomination Committee and each member of the Remuneration and Nomination Committee shall have the authority of the Board, where the Remuneration and Nomination Committee or a member of the Remuneration and Nomination Committee deems it necessary, to:

- (a) retain, terminate and consult with outside or other independent external advisers (including any external accounting, legal, tax or other professional advisers, consultants or specialists, as it may consider necessary or desirable to fulfil its objectives, acting reasonably) at the Company's expense provide that the expense is first approved by the Chair;
- (b) access any internal resources it may consider necessary or desirable to fulfil its objectives;
- (c) secure at meetings of the Remuneration and Nomination Committee the attendance of external persons with relevant experience;
- (d) delegate any of its responsibilities to the Chair on any occasions the Remuneration and Nomination Committee considers appropriate;
- (e) investigate any activity within the Remuneration and Nomination Committee's responsibilities under the terms of this Policy;
- (f) communicate with any employee to seek any information required for the Remuneration and Nomination Committee or the member of the Remuneration and Nomination Committee (as applicable) to carry out its role; and
- (g) deal with matters requiring a decision by way of written resolution. A written resolution will be deemed to have been passed once a majority of members eligible to vote have signed it and will be effective the date the last member constituting the majority signs. That written resolution is as valid and effective as if it had been passed at a meeting of the Committee duly convened and held.

9.7. Reliance on information provided by or to the Remuneration and Nomination Committee

- (a) Reliance upon advice and information provided by senior executives to the Remuneration and Nomination Committee

As independent non-executive directors who are members of the Remuneration and Nomination Committee are not Employees, those members of the Remuneration and Nomination Committee are entitled to rely on the KMP as to matters within their responsibility and on external professionals as to matters within their area of expertise. Those members of the Remuneration and Nomination Committee may assume the accuracy of information provided by those persons, so long as the member of the Remuneration and Nomination Committee is not aware of any reasonable grounds upon which that reliance or assumption may be inappropriate.

- (b) Reliance upon advice and information provided by the Remuneration and Nomination Committee to the Board

The Board may rely upon information provided by the Remuneration and Nomination Committee and its members in relation to matters within the Remuneration and Nomination Committee's responsibility under the terms of this Policy, provided it has evaluated the information and is not aware of any reasonable basis upon which to question its accuracy.

9.8. Review of Charter

This Policy and the Remuneration and Nomination Committee performance against this Policy will be reviewed at least every two years and may be updated from time to time as and when determined by the Board.

10. Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy

10.1. Purpose and Scope

At Propel, we are committed to upholding a strong framework for the way we conduct our business. Importantly, the framework should provide clear boundaries to help Directors and Employees make the right decisions. This includes conducting business activities in compliance with applicable laws, rules and regulations in all the jurisdictions in which we operate.

It is our policy to conduct all of our business in an honest and ethical manner. We take a zero-tolerance approach to bribery and corruption and are committed to acting professionally, fairly and with integrity in all our business dealings and relationships wherever we operate and implementing and enforcing effective systems to counter bribery and corruption.

The Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy is designed to:

- ensure everyone understands their responsibilities with respect to observing and upholding our zero-tolerance position on bribery and corruption;
- act as a source of information and guidance on recognising and dealing with bribery and corruption; and
- encourage people to raise concerns about any instance, or suspicion, of malpractice at the earliest possible time.

10.2. Who must follow this policy?

The Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy applies to all Directors and Employees. In addition, Propel's independent contractors, sales agents, consultants and distributors must comply with relevant aspects of the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy.

Should a Director or Employee become aware of any issues, they should speak up and report any suspected violation of the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy.

10.3. This Policy and the Law

Directors and Employees are expected to comply with the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy and all applicable government laws, rules and regulations. Where local customs, standards, laws or other local policies apply that are stricter than the provisions of the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy, the stricter rules must be complied with.

However, if the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy stipulates stricter rules than local customs, standards, laws or other local policies, the stricter provisions of the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy shall apply. The laws that govern work activities are often complex, but ignorance does not relieve anyone of an obligation to comply.

10.4. Responsibilities

If a Director or Employee is ever unsure about a business action or decision, they should not proceed. If they encounter situations in which the right choice is unclear or there is conflicting information, they are expected to seek guidance on how to ensure the Company and they do the right thing in that situation.

Subject to stated elsewhere in the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy, it is not acceptable for a Director or Employee (or someone on their behalf) to:

- give, promise to give, or offer, a payment, gift or hospitality with the expectation or hope that a business advantage will be received, or to reward a business advantage already given;
- give, promise to give, or offer, a payment, gift or hospitality to a public official or third party to 'facilitate' or expedite a routine procedure;

- accept payment from a third party that one knows or suspects is offered with the expectation that it will obtain a business advantage for them;
- accept a gift or hospitality from a third party if one knows or suspects that it is offered or provided with an expectation that a business advantage will be provided by us in return;
- threaten or retaliate against another employee who has refused to commit a bribery offence or who has raised concerns under the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy; or
- engage in any activity that might lead to a breach of the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy or perceived breach of the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy.

It is each Director's and Employee's responsibility to ensure that all accounts, invoices, memoranda and other documents and records relating to dealings with third parties, such as clients, suppliers and business contacts, should be prepared and maintained with strict accuracy and completeness. No accounts must be kept 'off the books'.

Directors and Employees must declare and keep a written record of all gifts and benefits. They must also ensure that all expense claims relating to gifts and benefits or expenses received from or given to third parties are submitted in accordance with any expenses policy adopted by Propel from time to time. A record for the reason for the expenditure should be documented.

The prevention, detection and reporting of any form of bribery and corruption are the responsibility of all Directors and Employees. Directors and Employees must report any matter as soon as possible if they are offered a bribe, are asked to make one, suspect that this may happen in the future, or believe that they are a victim of another form of unlawful activity.

Directors and Employees have the responsibility to read, understand and comply with the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy. They should at all times, avoid any activity that might lead to, or suggest, a breach of the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy.

The following is a list of possible red flags that may arise and which may raise concerns under various anti-bribery and anticorruption laws. The list is not intended to be exhaustive and it is for illustrative purposes only. If a Director or Employee encounters any of these red flags, they must report them promptly:

- a gift or benefit made with the intention of influencing a third party to obtain or retain business, to gain a business advantage, or to reward the provision or retention of business or a business advantage, or in explicit or implicit exchange for favours or benefits;
- a gift or benefit that includes cash or a cash equivalent (such as gift certificates or vouchers);
- a gift or benefit that is of an inappropriate type and value and given at an inappropriate time (e.g. during a tender process);
- a gift or benefit that is given secretly and not openly;
- a third party engages in, or has been accused of engaging in, improper business practices;
- if the third party refuses to divulge adequate information;
- a third party has a reputation for paying bribes, or requiring that bribes are paid to them, or has a reputation for having a 'special relationship' with foreign public officials;
- a third party insists on receiving a commission or fee payment before committing to sign up to a contract with the Company, or carrying out a government function or process for the Company;
- a third party requests payment in cash and/or refuses to sign a formal commission or fee agreement, or to provide an invoice or receipt for a payment made;
- a third party requests that payment is made to a country or geographic location different from where the third party resides or conducts business;
- a third party requests an unexpected additional fee or commission to 'facilitate' a service;
- a third party demands lavish gifts, invitations or hospitality before commencing or continuing contractual negotiations or provision of services;
- a third party requests that a payment is made to 'overlook' potential legal violations;
- a third party requests some advantage to them or a friend or relative or theirs;
- a third party requests that a political contribution or donation is made to the party or charity of their choice before agreeing to undertake a business relationship with Propel;
- an invoice from a third party is received that appears to be non-standard or customised;

- a third party refuses to put terms agreed in writing;
- the Company has been invoiced for a commission or fee payment that appears large given the service stated to have been provided;
- a third party requests or requires the use of an agent, intermediary, consultant, distributor or supplier that is not typically used by or known to the Company; and/or
- an unusually generous gift or offered lavish hospitality is offered by a third party.

10.5. Permitted Gifts and Benefits

The Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy does not prohibit normal and appropriate hospitality (given and received) in compliance with any other policy or procedure adopted by the Company from time to time.

The Company understands that the practice of giving business gifts varies among communities and what may be normal and acceptable in one community may not be in another. The test to be applied is whether in all the circumstances the gift or hospitality is reasonable, justifiable and is proportionate. The intention behind the gift should always be considered.

10.6. Protection

Directors and Employees who refuse to take part in bribery or corruption, or report in good faith under the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy their suspicion that an actual or potential bribery or other corruption offence has taken place or may take place in the future will be protected from detrimental treatment/retaliation. Detrimental treatment includes dismissal, disciplinary action, threats or other unfavourable treatment connected with raising a concern.

10.7. Reporting Breaches of this Policy

If a Director or Employee observes behaviour that concerns them, or that may represent a violation of the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy, they must raise the issue promptly. They have several options for raising issues and concerns. They can contact any of the following:

- their manager, if an Employee;
- speak to another manager, if an Employee;
- the Chairman, if a Director;
- the Company Secretary of another Director, if the Chairman; or
- speak to the Group Head of HR.

All reports will be investigated promptly and without recrimination against the person making the report, in accordance with Propel's Employee Complaint Resolution Policy.

10.8. Anonymity and Confidentiality

Directors and Employees may choose to remain anonymous when they make their report in relation to a breach of the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy through the process provided in Propel's Whistleblower Policy. To assist with confidentiality, avoid discussing these issues, or any investigation, with other employees. To maintain strict confidentiality, the Company may not be able to inform a complainant of the outcome of an investigation.

Any complainant should continue to be treated with professionalism, courtesy and respect.

If a Director or Employee becomes involved in an investigation, they should cooperate fully and answer all questions completely and honestly.

Directors and Employees must not retaliate against a person who has raised a concern honestly, or participated in an investigation, nor can this be the basis for any adverse employment action including separation, demotion, suspension, loss of benefits, threats, harassment or discrimination.

When an Employee is found to have breached the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy, the final repercussions for violations of a serious nature may include suspension of employment, loss or reduction of incentives, awards or benefits; or termination of employment.

Propel strives to ensure the disciplinary action fits the nature and circumstances of each policy violation. The Company seeks to protect against retaliation. If a concern is reported, it will be handled with appropriate confidentiality and discussed with others only as needed or advisable under the circumstances.

10.9. Review

The Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy will be periodically reviewed to ensure that it is operating effectively and to check whether any changes are required.
